

Greehey School of Business

The Greehey School of Business is specifically designed to develop tenacious professional and ethical leaders who are prepared to meet the demands of today's evolving business world. Dynamic educational opportunities have earned the school prestigious accreditation by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business.

Unique programs such as the Greehey Scholars Program and the Dean's Scholars Program offer students on-going mentorship with industry executives, professional development and for real-world learning experiences.

The Meadows Center for Entrepreneurial Studies and the Harvey Najim Center for Business Innovation and Social Responsibility nurture the entrepreneurial mindset, facilitate experiential learning experiences and inspire social consciousness.

Students in the Greehey School of Business also have the opportunity to be world travelers. Global internships, and full-semester and summer study-abroad sessions give our students the global perspective needed for successful careers in the modern world.

Our nationally ranked programs prepare students for a globally interconnected economy. Award-winning professors create a learning environment that combines strong fundamentals with actual business practice. After all, there are not many schools where undergraduates work in a real trading room and manage a $2.4 million portfolio!

From the Greehey Scholars Program to exciting international experiences, students are offered numerous opportunities to transform their personal and professional lives.
